Suspected Case of Cholera in Mississippi

Washington July 25.—Dr Hamilton, surgeon general of the Marine hospital, has received the following dispatch:

EVANSVILLE Ind., July 25

To Surgeon General Hamilton: A suspected case of cholera was taken from the steamer Annie P. Silver at St. Louis. The patient, a child, died at Port Anderson, Mississippi. The parties came direct to New Orleans from Toulon. Have notified Cairo and St. Louis.

AMES, Surgeon

The surgeon general immediately telegraphed to different points along the river not to allow the steamer to land until it is thoroughly inspected. This evening Dr. Hamilton received dispatches notifying him that the Annie P. Silver passed Cairo on [illegible] and is now at St. Louis, and that no suspicious cases of cholera have occurred on board. He immediately telegraphed the surgeon of the marine hospital service at St. Louis to make a full investigation and report to him at once the facts with regard to the suspected case reported at Port Anderson, Mississippi, and the general condition of the vessel, her passengers and crew.

In answer to a dispatch to Surgeon Ames at Evansville, Hamilton has been informed by that officer that his dispatch this afternoon was based on a telegram received by him (Ames) from the officer in charge at Nashville which stated, on authority of Dr Prince, of Port Anderson, Mississippi, that a case of cholera had been put off the Annie P. Silver at that place and the vessel was then on the way up the river. Dr. Hamilton says he does not believe it was cholera but feels justified in taking proper precautions, even to the extent of tracing the suspected case and putting the officials on their guard at once without waiting to prove the [illegible].

St. Louis July 25.—The steamer Annie P. Silver arrived [illegible] from Washington to-night, [illegible] yesterday morning and her captain A. W. [illegible] was greatly surprised on being informed of the contents of Surgeon General Hamilton's dispatches and instructions to the surgeon of the Marine hospital here.

Jay Gould could not be Found

New York July 25.—[Special.]—After the United States Grand Jury was sworn in the United States circuit court yesterday Judge Benedict called for Jay Gould and Robert L. Cutting, summoned to Jay Gould and Robert L. Cutting to show cause why they should not be punished for failing to answer a summons and reporting themselves as jurors. Cutting explained that he was exempt from jury duty. The excuse was accepted. Then Deputy Marshal Holmes handed up the order issued against Gould upon which was written "The within named Jay Gould cannot be found." Holmes afterwards explained that Gould was out of the city. Later on Judge Benedict issued a new summons to Gould which was placed in the marshal's hands. The order is not returnable until October and if Gould ventures in the city any time during the summons he can be brought to prove to the Judge that he ought not to be fined or imprisoned for contempt or to undergo a penalty. It is understood that Gould has instructed his lawyer to fix the matter by paying a fine now imposed.

Father Riordan Sails for Ireland

New York July 25.—[Special.]—Father Riordan, missionary at Castle Garden, sailed for Ireland to-day. He said: "I am going to Ireland to do all I can to discourage indiscriminate immigration to this country. But those who have small capital, or good skill who can help them, there is no country in the world like this, but it is a common idea in Ireland that all one has to do to make a fortune is to get to this country. So the lame, the blind, the halt, the aged and the vicious pour themselves on these shores and disgrace the name of Irishmen. Such people are worse off here than they are at home, for there they have some little restraint. Getting in a new land they feel privileged to act as they please, and eventually become a curse and a burden to them and the country. Among other things I shall try to establish at Belfast, Dublin, Londonderry and other places where young girls who come from inland to take passage for the new world can be lodged while waiting for a steamer."

Contest between Rival Contractors.

[illegible], July 25.—Two rival contractors, Thomas Williams and John Hackett, are engaged in a serious controversy which may lead to bloodshed. The trouble is regarding a claim to land on which mud dredged from Oakland creek is being dumped by Williams, who obtained a contract for dredging the creek. He had constructed dams across the mouth of ditches, which entered the creek, and levees along its banks. Hackett claims the land on which the mud was dumped by Williams. Last night a party of men in the employ of Hackett blew up with dynamite cartridges the dam and a portion of the levee. This morning the work of destruction was resumed. No personal violence has been attempted, though both parties, numbering each [illegible] men, are armed. The authorities have shown no disposition to interfere.

Grasshoppers in Connecticut.

New York, July 25.—[Special.]—Local papers report that the grasshopper visitation in Connecticut and a part of Massachusetts is very serious. Fields and gardens throughout the section west of the Connecticut river have been destroyed. Some farmers in Shelburne have this week driven their cattle into Vermont and New Hampshire for feed, and others have put their stock in barns to be fed on hay. Crops are also materially injured. The grasshoppers have attacked oat fields and gardens, and if they will continue, and what will be the state of the grass later in the season or another year, is a question the alarmed farmers are all asking. The immediate effect is to crowd on the butcher all the beef which is not half fattened that he can dispose of.

Washington Notes

The president has appointed John E. Bryant United States marshal for the district of Georgia, vice Longstreet, and John G. Brady of Alaska, [illegible] of Pennsylvania and Chester [illegible] of California commissioners of the district of Alaska, to reside respectively at Sitka, Wrangel and [illegible].

Pay Director J. H. Watmough, formerly paymaster general of the navy, will be placed on the retired list the 30th inst.

No action will be taken by the president in the matter of the commissionership of the new bureau of labor statistics until his return to Washington.

Reception to the Greely Party

[illegible] July 25.—The frigate Tallapoosa with Secretary Chandler and the Russian minister arrived. It is reported that Chandler has telegraphed Secretary Lincoln to come here to arrange a reception to Greely. Secretary Lincoln will send an army officer and surgeon to meet the Greely party on their arrival here. Bodies of the dead will be sent to their homes. The Russian minister returned to New York to-day. The city government of Portsmouth has appointed a committee to make arrangements for a reception to the Greeley party. Governor Hale has been communicated with in regard to sending the state militia on that occasion.

A White Girl Marries a Negro

Baltimore July 25.—[Special.]—Miss Helen [illegible] of Anne Arundel county, whose elopement with James Plater, a negro employe of her brother, has caused such a sensation in Maryland and Washington, is living with her black husband at the home of Plater's sister at Benning's station in Prince George's county. They were married in Washington by a negro preacher. A reporter who visited the place found that Mrs. Jessee Plater, nee Owens, possessed a decidedly unattractive appearance. She was attired in a loose fitting wrapper, her face was expressionless, and her eyes were dull and wild and indicated a weak intellect.

New York Notes

New York, July 25.—[Special.]—The city works department of Brooklyn reported that at the close of last year there were 37,572 brick and stone and 53,914 frame buildings in the city, with an average of seven persons to each.

The liabilities of Hand & Ellsworth, paper merchants, who failed yesterday are estimated at [illegible].

The Brooklyn Eagle says General Grant gives [illegible] supporting Cleveland.

Discovery of a Rare Stamp

New York, July 25.—[Special.]—Yesterday [illegible] Joseph V. Harkins found an old letter containing [illegible] stamp of the Brattleboro Vt. [illegible]. A stranger immediately offered him $400 [illegible]. Harkins took the money and suddenly decamped. There are only [illegible] Brattleboro stamps extant and these upon [illegible]. A gentleman here who owns one values it at [illegible]. The only one canceled is that just found by Harkins and is said to be of great value.

Mackay and his Cable

New York July 25.—[Special.]—It was reported on [illegible] yesterday that in London a story was current that Mackay has the money intended for the [illegible] cable locked up in depreciated securities on which he does not wish to realize at present. [illegible] speaking for Siemens Bros states that Mackay's payments have been [illegible] but there has been some delay by other [illegible] possibly by Bennett.

Asking for Protection

Cincinnati Ohio July 25.—A petition was presented to the mayor by the proprietors of stove foundries and cigar manufacturers praying for the protection of non union men in their employ. They say their men are assaulted and beaten day after day and receive no protection from the police. If they cannot be protected they will remove their factories to other cities.

Internal Revenue Receipts

Washington July 25.—The commissioner of internal revenue furnished to-day statements relating to collections in his bureau for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1884, and comparisons with those of the preceding fiscal year. From these it appears that the aggregate receipts for the fiscal year are $121,[illegible], a decrease as compared with the preceding year of $22,[illegible].

Information Wanted

Washington, July 25.—The officer commanding the United States troops charged with the duty of removing squatters from Cherokee lands, Indian Territory, has requested the interior department to send a representative to point out which persons are to be ejected. It is probable that an employe of the Indian office will be directed to discharge that duty.

Reduction of Telegraph Tolls.

[illegible], July 25.—The Baltimore & Ohio telegraph company have reduced tolls for messages between St. Louis, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York to 25 cents for day, and night messages to 15 cents, for fifteen words, to go into effect Monday, making the rate to St. Louis the same [illegible].

THE BRITISH FLAG FIRED UPON

A Spanish Cruiser Boards an English Vessel and Searches for Dynamite

New York, July 25.—[Special.]—The Herald prints a curious story, told yesterday by the purser of the steamship Alps of the Atlas line, vouched for by the captain of a small British vessel which he alleges was fired into by a Spanish cruiser at Mondosey(?) off the West Indian islands, although his vessel was flying the British flag. The captain says the Spaniards boarded and compelled him to haul down his colors. Search was made for dynamite, after which the Alamandares(?) steamed to Port Antonio, where the purser of the Alps saw her. On the latter vessel's return trip four days since the purser says he also saw the Spanish captain in the custom house and he gave his version of the story. According to him the captain general at Havana issued instructions to the captains of Spanish gunboats to look out for suspicious vessels and if they considered it advisable to board them on the plea of searching for dynamite, which the Cuban revolutionists were trying to smuggle into the country.

THE SPANISH CAPTAIN ARRESTED

The Herald adds: According to the Kingston Journal the vessel fired upon was not the Godfrey(?) but the [illegible], a British sloop owned by Thompson, Harkey & Co. of London. The same journal states that the captain of the Almandarez was arrested on his arrival at Kingston by a lieutenant and two marines of her majesty's steamer Blonquar(?) by order of the commander and not released until a late hour in the evening and after bond had been given by the Spanish consul for his appearance when required. The journals speak strongly against the proceedings against the Spanish captain, and one of them dwells at considerable length on the ignominious treatment he received from a mob who gathered on the wharf to witness his arrest and jeered and hooted him to their hearts' content.

A Herald reporter visited the Spanish consul general of this city who partially confirmed the story but could give no particulars. He thought the story of large purchases of dynamite here for use in Cuba untrue.

CRIMINAL CALENDAR

THE CHINESE IN NEW YORK

New York, July 25.—[Special.]—The Sun says that Tom Lee, the ruse boss here, yesterday went bail for Gee Man, wife of Sam Chin Tin, who has been keeping a disreputable house on Polk street. Captain McCullough applied several times to justices sitting in the Tombs for a warrant to raid Polk street, but could not produce evidence enough to get them. He arrested women coming out of the house but he was [illegible]. They were discharged either in the police court or on habeas corpus. Some days ago he told Mrs. Sam Chin Tin that she must move out of the precinct. She went up to Mott street and hired a more elegant quarters paying $100 a month, but getting into [illegible] with [illegible], one of her boarders, the latter gave her away and she was arrested.

FORCED TO BECOME A BIGAMIST

Richmond July 25.—[Special.]—Dr Edwards, who was arrested in Atlanta for the attempted murder of Miss Boatwright, whom he married in this city, and also for bigamy, tells a startling story regarding his last marriage. He says he met his wife at a hotel in this city where she was the linen room keeper. They subsequently lived as man and wife in Petersburg. In May last two of her brothers presented themselves and forced him to marry her, notwithstanding he told them he had another wife in North Carolina. Edwards claims that he fled from Miss Boatwright on the first opportunity.

NEGRO HANGED BY A MOB

Galveston July 25.—News Cameron special: This morning a negro was found suspended to a tree close to the iron bridge across the river. Investigation shows the negro to be the same who recently robbed the residence of Rev. Lightfoot and attempted to outrage Mrs. Lightfoot. He was captured in a morning about 2 o'clock by a reconnoitering party and hanged. He confessed the crime, giving the name of William Smith, from Dallas, and said he had an accomplice named George. A large number of stolen articles was found on his person.

ASSAULTED BY NEGROES

New York, July 25.—[Special.]—The journals this morning contain no fewer than three accounts of assaults on unprotected women by negroes in out of the way places near the city. There seems to be an epidemic of this crime all over the country as well.

Billy O'Brien, McCaffrey's backer, was commissioned while in Boston to match John L. Sullivan against Paddy Ryan for a four rounds contest. Jim Kimmerson is Ryan's backer and has $1000 of Ryan's money to bet that Sullivan cannot knock him out in four rounds.

CAKES WITHOUT EGGS.

In a little book just issued from the press of Messrs. Scribner & Welford, New York, a large number of practical though novel recipes are given for making cakes of various kinds, from the informal griddle cake to the stately bride cake, without eggs, by the use of the Royal Baking Powder. Expert cake makers inform us that this custom has already obtained large precedence over old fashioned methods in economical kitchens, and that the product is frequently superior to that where eggs are used, and that less butter is also required for shortening purposes. The advantage is not alone in the saving effected, but in the avoidance of the trouble attendant upon securing fresh eggs and the annoyance of an occasional cake spoiled by the accidental introduction of an egg that has reached a little too nearly the incubatory period. The Royal Baking Powder also invariably insures perfectly light, sweet, and handsome cake, or when used for griddle cakes to be eaten hot, enables their production in the shortest possible space of time and makes them most tender and delicious, as well as entirely wholesome. There is no other preparation like it.

THE FIGHT FOR OFFICE.

Barnum's Election to the Chairmanship a Source of Complaint.

THE WORK OF THE PROHIBITION CONVENTION

St. John Accepts the Nomination—The Greenbackers Tired of Waiting for the Widow Butler's Answer—News and Gossip.

New York July 25.—[Special.]—A Tammany sachem upon being informed of Barnum's election as head of the democratic national committee said:

It does not surprise me. I heard at Chicago that he was to be chosen. He is one of the machine that went to Washington and organized the defeat of the Morrison tariff bill in order to kill off McDonald as a candidate. He then worked for Cleveland under cover of Tilden's name. He is a bitter foe of Tammany and did Kelly and Tammany the injustice of charging the defeat of Hancock to them. It was his notoriously bad management, his Morey letter and other bad management that defeated Hancock. He is a pretty specimen of a reformer.

Holman at Washington being interviewed said the selection of Barnum was a grave mistake.

THE TIMES DISGUSTED

New York July 25.—[Special.]—Barnum's selection to the chairmanship of the democratic national committee offends the independents. The Times says: The democratic convention under the stimulant of strong and widespread public sentiment rose up fairly to the opportunity presented to it in nominating Cleveland. Whether it will maintain this level in the management of the campaign are very doubtful. The selection of ex-Senator Barnum gives little assurance of it. Mule-buying, forged letters, and similar devices may easily check the rising of popular favor.

THE NOMINATION OF ST JOHN

Philadelphia July 25.—[Special.]—The following from the Times is a fair sample of eastern newspaper comment on the prohibition nomination: For the first time in our history the doings of the prohibition national convention have attracted some attention in political circles. The nomination of St John is the best that could have been made if a third party must be organized to deal with this question. He is a man of fair ability. Since the last presidential election the movement has had considerable accession of strength in some states and it is not unlikely that St John may secure about 50,000 votes in the whole country. The prohibitionists' purposes are fixed upon Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Kansas, where electoral tickets will be placed in the field. McDonald's boom came to a sad end by some one's saying hard things of him in his wheat, through the charge that he made his millions by selling bitters. His eulogist in the convention denounced this as a foul slander, and he was probably correct, as there was little else than water mixed with some harmless decoctions. All the money taken in was profit, the principal cost of the mixture being in printing and folding the much vaunted temperance tract.

ST JOHN ACCEPTS

Pittsburg July 25.—J S Little of Newark, New Jersey, received the following telegram this morning from ex-Governor St. John:

ROCHESTER, N. Y. July 25

Hon John B Finch, George R Scott, R M [illegible], Bennett: I was at Lakeside yesterday and did not receive your telegram until this morning. While I did not seek or desire the nomination I greatly appreciate the unanimity with which it was given as well as the honor it conferred. I can only say now that I acquiesce in the action of the convention and, looking to God for his guidance, I shall try to do my duty. (Signed) JOHN P. ST. JOHN

THE GREENBACKERS BECOMING IMPATIENT

New York July 25.—Charles Jenkins, twice candidate of the greenback party of Ohio for governor, wrote General O. Jones, chairman of the state committee of that party in New York, saying it was doubtful whether the state convention in Ohio on the 28th instant would nominate an electoral ticket to be voted for at the coming election, and asking advice on the subject. Jones in reply says:

If General Butler runs as the candidate of our party or even a third party candidate recognizing our principles and organization in the canvass, he will poll a large vote in the state, including that of nearly every greenbacker here, but he must indicate his intentions very soon, for our true men care nothing for outside combinations. They are becoming impatient and discontented at his delay. They want and will have a candidate to represent them, not the other parties or organizations which do not or dare not touch questions of vital importance to themselves or the country. Our state convention will meet in this city on the 27th of August and appoint a full set of electors, and I sincerely hope our party in each state in the Union will likewise. Besides placing state and electoral tickets in nomination, I hope your state convention will appoint a committee to act in concert with other trusted men throughout the Union in selecting candidates for president in the event of General Butler declining to run as our candidate, and suggest Tuesday September 3 for such action if it becomes necessary.

THE COMMITTEE OF SEVEN

New York July 25.—The committee of seven appointed at a meeting of the democratic national committee to consider the plans and organization of the national committee for campaign work met after the national committee had adjourned. All members or proxies were present. A general discussion took place and a conference with the congressional committee held. It was decided that the national committee should attend to national affairs especially, and that the congressional committee should look after elections in congressional districts. It was estimated that there are seventy-eight congressional districts that are confessedly close and to these the congressional committee should give their particular attention. Representatives Stevens of New York, Murphy of Iowa and Rosecrans of California were appointed a standing committee of the congressional body to work with the national committee. The headquarters of the congressional committee is to be in Washington. The headquarters of the national committee has not yet been selected.

GOVERNOR CLEVELAND'S MOVEMENTS

Peekskill N. Y., July 25.—The Sixty-ninth Irish regiment in camp here was visited by Governor Cleveland in response to an invitation by Colonel Cavanaugh and men. The governor was received with a salute of twenty-one guns and by the regiment in line commanded by Colonel Cavanaugh. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, who are sojourning at their Peekskill country residence, also visited the camp and met Governor Cleveland. After being entertained by the state military authorities in the state encampment, Governor Cleveland and Mr. Beecher, with General Farnsworth, informally visited the Sixty-ninth regiment and accepted the hospitalities of its colonel and other officers. Governor Cleveland was repeatedly greeted with three times three. The class of '84 of the military academy rode in from West Point, ten miles distant, and there also gathered by invitation of Colonel Cavanaugh a detachment of the Seventh regiment of New York.

THE IMMORALITY CHARGES

Philadelphia July 25.—[Special.]—The Press says: While refusing to print the disreputable story about Cleveland, to which publication compels reference, the story was early placed in our hands and it has since been corroborated by the testimony of a Buffalo minister of the gospel. The alleged facts are printed in a score of democratic papers and in at least one newspaper, the Buffalo Express, long friendly to Cleveland. These charges are referred to without a word of denial. Let the religious papers who profess to find in Blaine a man they cannot conscientiously support reconcile with their position as teachers of morality the life of the candidate of their choice.

THE YOUNG REPUBLICAN CLUB

New York July 25.—[Special.]—[illegible] Andrews, founder of the Brooklyn young republican club, said this morning: There has been considerable speculation as to the real position of the club. The members by a large majority favor supporting the republican nominees, but certain officers, including Horace E. Deming, chairman of the advisory committee, and Mr. Bowler, are personally against Blaine and have prevented any action by the club. Such a condition has led the public to suppose the club was against Blaine.

NEAL DOW FOR BLAINE

New York July 25.—[Special.]—General Neal Dow has written to the editor of a New Jersey prohibition paper: I have had many letters from different parts of the country making inquiries about Blaine. My reply has been that he has always been a friend of the Maine law and has many times rendered important services to it. He is in favor of the proposed constitutional amendment and will vote for it. He is also a teetotaler and has been so several years.

THE LATE CONVENTION

Pittsburg July 25.—Delegates are leaving by every train and all will by to-morrow have left the city. After the adjournment of the convention last night the California delegation, on behalf of McDonald, gave a banquet to the delegates and leaders of the convention. In interviews to-day delegates claim they will poll from 300,000 to 1,000,000 votes, that they will probably carry Kansas and Maryland and so throw the election into congress.

WHY PURCELL GOT OFF THE CLEVELAND

New York July 25.—[Special.]—Editor Purcell of the Rochester Union, who resigned control of his paper temporarily rather than support Cleveland, was at the Gilsey house yesterday. When asked why he refused to support the democratic nominee he said: It is neither on personal or political grounds. It is because I believe him to be a moral leper.

Chicago July 25.—Henry A. Elkins, a well known landscape painter of this city, died of mountain fever at Georgetown, Colo., to-day.

There will be a busy scene the first week in October at the hop farm of the Snoqualmie Hop Growers' Association. There are over 300 acres of hops there gathered the finest in the territory, and it will require the services of not less than 500 pickers to gather them. Thirteen kilns 72x48 feet have been erected with a dry and cooling room to each 44x48. Those kilns will be run night and day, and there will be a hive of industry up to the first week in November.

THE CHOLERA EPIDEMIC

Sad Tales of Death and Riot from Unfortunate France—Epidemic Notes

Paris July 25.—Isolated cases of cholera continue to be reported at various parts of France. Some are widely distant from the infected district. A woman living at Courbevoie, a village only a few miles from Paris, was seized with sporadic cholera Thursday. She was conveyed to the hospital and the lodging thoroughly disinfected. No further cases are believed to exist in the community. Two cases of children are reported at Narbonne and at St. Nazaire, a village near Toulon. Two deaths have occurred. One was of an especially pathetic character. An unknown woman was seized while passing along the street, fell prostrate and expired immediately. A pitiable case is reported from Marseilles. A woman seventy years of age had been missing several days. The police at last forced an entrance into her lodging and found her body upon the floor in such a condition that she must have been dead some days. An examination proved she was a victim of the cholera. She had lived almost exclusively on fruit.

A TERRIBLE STATE OF AFFAIRS

Paris July 25.—At Toulon thirteen deaths from cholera occurred during the day up to 6 P. M. There were three deaths from that disease at [illegible] to-day and one at Draguignan. Complaint is being made at Marseilles that measures precautionary against the spread of cholera have been slackened, and that the work of disinfection is not sufficiently thorough. The police have arrested a number of undertakers for selling clothing and bedding belonging to victims of the epidemic. July 3,000 persons are at work in the arsenal at Toulon. Seven thousand workmen are usually employed.

At the asylum in Lugan, Italy, the attendants secreted the keys to the wine cellar. Wednesday night (at midnight) and after having got to the cellar and becoming drunk assaulted the sisters of charity and inmates of the institution, but force resistance was offered them. The soldiers were called and suppressed the outbreak. Several revelers who were there under quarantine regulation were wounded during the disturbance.

An order has been published at Metz that all persons arriving from France in Alsace Lorraine without having certificates of health be expelled from the country.

DEATHS FROM CHOLERA

Paris July 25.—Fifteen deaths from cholera in Toulon last night, five in the hospital, three in town and seven in the suburbs. It is feared the sultry weather will increase the virulence of the epidemic. Six hundred people have left Toulon within two days for the Pyrenees. Deaths at Marseilles last night six teen.

Paris July 25.—Between 9 o'clock and noon only one death from cholera at Marseilles—a large falling off in the number of cases.

Paris July 25.—A steamer with cholera arrived off Puerto [illegible]. Inhabitants were panic stricken and fled across the frontier into Portugal.

Paris July 25.—In Marseilles at 10 this evening seventeen deaths from cholera had occurred.

Paris, July 25.—At Marseilles thirty eight deaths occurred during the twenty four hours ending at 6 o'clock to-night.

DEPLORABLE STATE OF AFFAIRS

Paris July 25.—The condition of affairs at Arles is most deplorable. The water supply is entirely cut off owing to an accident to the hydraulic apparatus. Numerous funerals of cholera victims have been conducted by men who are generally drunk. These funerals have been greatly retarded by the fact that carpenters refused to make coffins for those who die from cholera. Nearly all bakers and butchers have left the city. Food is consequently scarce and difficult to obtain. The panic throughout the city is simply indescribable. The epidemic appears to be extending. One death occurred at Saintes Maries De Lamer. The inhabitants of that town want to expel all refugees from Arles. In six different villages of the department of Bouches du Rhone from one to two deaths have occurred. At Vintimiglia, Italy, there have been ten deaths.

NOT PERMITTED TO LAND

Paris July 25.—The corvette Argentina, recently arrived from Marseilles, desired to take on coal at Gibraltar. The English authorities, however, forbid her landing and threatened to fire unless the vessel departed. The Argentina thereupon proceeded to a port in Portugal and began coaling, but the inhabitants became panic stricken and compelled the authorities to order the immediate departure of the vessel. Where the Argentina is to find fuel enough to return to La Plata appears an insoluble problem.

A PREY TO THIEVES

Paris July 25.—A member of the chamber of deputies has returned from Marseilles and says there have been more deaths in the city from cholera than have been registered. Marseilles, he states, is a prey to thieves who plunder at will. They entered the court house on Wednesday and robbed the offices.

A BETTER CONDITION PREVAILS

Paris July 25.—Reports from Marseilles and Toulon up to half past three this afternoon show that the condition of affairs is steadily improving. The councilor of Arles who fled at the approach of cholera will be prosecuted.

TIMELY PRECAUTIONS

London July 25.—Trevelyan, chief secretary for Ireland, has given the Dublin corporation instructions to prepare for an outbreak of cholera and empowers officers to raise a loan to meet expenses incurred in coping with the disease. They are, if it becomes necessary, empowered to erect temporary hospitals and care for the sick.

WILL SEND PHYSICIANS

London July 25.—The government will send Drs. Klein and Gibbs to co-operate with the cholera commission in India.

A PLEA FOR AMERICAN BEEF

A Deputation of Prominent Englishmen Speak in Behalf of Wyoming Cattle.

London July 25.—A large and influential deputation waited upon Baron Carlingford, lord of the privy seal, to-day and urged the immediate removal of the restrictions placed by the privy council on the importation of cattle from Wyoming. Earl Warncliffe, Baron Wenlock, Lord Edward Cavendish, Cecil Power(?), Sir George Balfour, Albert Grey and Charles Palmer, members of commons, together with a delegate of the Wyoming Flock Growers Association were present. The speakers urged that cheap healthy cattle were obtainable through Canada, and from the country of the Missouri river. They declared that no cattle disease existed in these regions, and that the greatest precautions are taken during transportation of cattle through to the seaboard and on the seaboard. The cattle were furnished from the second to the third year in Wyoming at one fourth what the cost would be in England. They could be exported with very great advantage to both the British consumer and to the exporter. The business of fattening them for the market would prove a great source of profit to farmers and consumers.

Baron Carlingford replied for himself and for Hodge Dodson, chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster. He said they realized the extreme interest and importance of the statements made and the plea which had been urged, and they would bestow careful consideration upon them. He refrained from saying, however, whether the importation of Wyoming cattle into Great Britain from Wyoming would be consistent with the law. He thought it would be necessary to consult Canada before any steps be taken.

A STRONG ARGUMENT

Lord Henry Neville and Arthur Arnold, John Fender, W. B. Beaumont, W. Barclay, Robert Bruce and Hon. James Lowther, members of parliament, were also in the delegation.

Lord Warncliffe asked that the third clause of the cattle act be applied, and that cattle should in consequence be admitted from Wyoming. He argued that Wyoming had done everything in her power to prevent infection and there was no possible reason why cattle from that Territory brought by way of the great lakes should not be admitted into Great Britain. All parts would be benefited if this were done.

Mr. Frewen submitted evidence of the absence of disease among cattle in the west. If the proof he offered was insufficient he said he was willing to pay the expense of a commission to visit Wyoming and ascertain all the facts at first hand. Wyoming, he declared, was willing to isolate herself from any eastern state. Wyoming was a test case. If she succeeded in gaining her point other states would follow her example. They all wanted to get away from the domination of the Chicago ring.

Mr. Dodson said he was ready to welcome cheap meat dead or alive if it only proved perfectly safe.

J. W. Barclay, M. P., stated he public meetings in Forfarshire, his constituency, had declared in favor of the admission of American cattle.

Lord Wenlock, Albert Grey, M. P., and Arthur Arnold, M. P., spoke in support of the deputation.

Baron Carlingford gave it as his opinion that the conditions under which the privy council might admit that cattle former [illegible] the consideration of which was beset with numerous difficulties.

The Chinese Act Extended for two Years, as well as Amended—A Pleasant Prophecy for Oregon Farmers—Coast News Notes

Tacoma July 25.—[Special.]—Fire broke out in the American house at 12 20 this morning and in less than two hours and a half all of block 704 was consumed. Thirty-two buildings burned, all frames. All of the contents was saved in a damaged condition. This was the first block built in the city and contained most of the saloons. Only by hard work was the remainder of the business portion saved. The loss will aggregate $40,000, with $15,000 insurance. While the loss falls severely upon some good men the fire may be called a benefit to the town, as the fire limits will force the building of bricks. The loss is divided among a great number of people.

Section 1 says that from and after the passage of this act and until the expiration of ten years next after the passage of this act the coming of Chinese shall be and the same is hereby suspended, etc. This adds two years to the period of restriction fixed by the original Chinese restriction act.

THE WHEAT OUTLOOK

The Chronicle Predicts Higher Prices for the Crop this Year

San Francisco, July 25.—[Special.]—The Chronicle is of the opinion that the price of wheat will advance and presses its views of the situation in a long editorial to-day. In conclusion it says: In 1882-3 England paid an average of 49 shillings per quarter for wheat, and her imports and farmers deliveries averaged 4,000,000 bushels monthly above her consumption. On the other hand in 1883-84 the average price is only 4[illegible] shillings per quarter and even with the aid of bankrupt stocks her imports and farmers deliveries are 4000 bushels monthly below her consumption. The result is that England will begin her new cereal year with normal stocks in her granary, derived from farmers' deliveries and imports, and estimated at 14,000,000 bushels. To maintain her stocks at the normal point after September 1 she must of necessity either then or earlier advance the price, as even the Indian farmers are unwilling to sell at the present figures.

THE SURPLUS ON THIS COAST

England will naturally be a little more over cautious at this time, but she will soon discover a wide difference between 1882-83 and 1884-85. In the former year the American surplus was almost entirely on the Atlantic side and within easy reach of her market, while in the coming season a large proportion of the surplus will be on the Pacific side, and even in the event of fair prices it must take an average of fifteen months to reach European consumers. The surplus from this coast, when large, is now farther away from Europe than ever, because steamers have not yet invaded the California wheat trade, and the world's supply of sailing tonnage has become too small for such an emergency, and this important fact, which at present is overlooked by eastern and European operators, is of itself a sufficient reason why wheat in importing countries must rise above its present level. Grain traders do not agree with the theory, but it is difficult to determine how far their views are influenced by their interests.

His High-toned Touch.

San Francisco Argonaut.

A friend who was recently traveling by stagecoach over a California road told me an anecdote concerning the driver which rather amused me. These coast types by the way are peculiar people. I make it a point whenever I go anywhere by stage coach to get the box seat and commune with the driver—when I can. Sometimes he will not commune. My friend Viator found it so. The driver was dumb as an oyster. There was even a tinge of contempt in his monosyllable stoppers to conversation. At last a station was reached, where, as the jehu tersely informed his passengers, they were to rassle with their hash. They got off and rassled. Viator was heavily thrown. When the first course was removed the neat-handed Phyllis, who generally officiates at wayside eating houses, came to Viator, whisked some crumbs on his lap and some gravy on his collar, and remarked:

"Pie or pudding?" "Pie," said Viator meekly. The pie was brought. It was confected of dried apples, incased with horn. Viator excited the neat-handed Phyllis' amused contempt by calling for a fork. The remainder of the guests pried open the pie with a knife. As Viator was toying with this sudden-death viand he noticed the driver regarding him with much interest. After the meal the journey was resumed, and to Viator's surprise he found the driver entirely changed. He had unbent. He was quite affable and communicative. Before the next station was reached they were fast friends. "Tell me," said Viator, at last, "what is the reason you were so indisposed to converse with me at first? You must have had some prejudice against me." "Wall, you see," replied the driver, flicking a fly with great precision from the nigh swing hoss's ear, "at first ye see I thought ye was a Methodist preacher, but when I see ye give that high-toned touch on your pie I knowed you was a gambler."

Teller and Gresham will Make Speeches in the South

Secretary Teller expects to leave Washington for Colorado within a few days, to be absent several weeks. He will probably go by the way of New York in order to talk with members of the republican national committee about political matters. It is understood that Secretary Teller will make a number of speeches in the course of the campaign. It is believed that Postmaster General Gresham will also make a number of speeches during the campaign although he has not yet fully decided. He has already received invitations to speak in Massachusetts and at Richmond and Knoxville. If he goes south at all, as it now seems probable he will do, he will make one speech at Jackson, Mississippi. During a portion of the war he served in Mississippi and he is well known and highly respected by the people of that state without regard to party.

A FEMALE HERMIT

Nancy Luce, the Eccentric Poet of Martha's Vineyard—Her Eccentric Appearance, Her Modest Hens, and Love of Spotless Toilet.

Boston Globe.

Miss Nancy Luce is a resident of Tisbury, on the island of Martha's Vineyard. The house in which she was born her parents occupied and since their death Nancy has lived in it alone. It is situated about three-quarters of a mile from the village of West Tisbury and is flanked on either side by a grove of oak trees. Nancy is regarded as a natural curiosity, and one of the first trips the visitor to the vineyard undertakes is a visit to her hermitage. In her early youth she was a peculiar child. It is said and was looked upon by the neighbors as a sort of natural. As she grew to womanhood her only companions were a pet nannie goat and her horse, a wild creature whom she alone had ridden. Her equestrian performances were remarkable for the daring, and still they are displayed, and even now well remembered.

When a young woman Nancy suddenly shut herself up in her room and refused to see even her parents for a long time.

Different causes were assigned for this act. Some say that Nancy had a lover whose name was also Luce. Archie was a sailor and owing to some lovers' quarrel he departed suddenly on a long voyage without bidding Nancy farewell. His ship was never sighted after she left port on a dark cloudy morning. Months after she had gone, a narrow slip of board with gilt moldings and letters were washed ashore on the west side of the island, where some one found it and deciphered the word "Arethusa." It was the name of Archie Luce's ship. They carried it to Nancy.

Then about this time her goat died and this latter bereavement greatly added to her grief. This attachment in itself was not curious, but the effect of the goat's death upon her was a great surprise to the village folk. While her parents lived she declined to see any one for a long time, but after their death she was of necessity forced to have more or less to do with the outside world, and gradually became accustomed to receiving visits.

It is now thirty five or forty years since their death and she has resolutely refused to allow any one to share her home with her, its only other inmates being a cow and a few hens. These occupy several rooms of the mansion, a porch and a quadrangle adjoining. Her principal occupation is caring for these hens and the cow, which supply her chief support. Report of her eccentricity drew many visitors, and it is a favorite rendezvous for picnics and holiday enjoyment for the islanders as well.

Whether she is as crazy as she seems now is doubtful, as she certainly exhibits a general method of procedure, and to a degree which [illegible] some of her visitors away with the idea that she is not a picturesque lunatic at all. Of course Nancy has been more or less advertised. One circumstance in particular which has aided her in this direction is the fact that Luce is a common name on the island and there have been several Nancys. So that several times the death of Nancy Luce, "the only and original," etc., has been reported with more or less of her history added. The story of course is denied to some extent and altogether adds considerably to her notoriety.

Her strong points are hens and religion, and on these subjects she exhibits a rational reasoning and consistent experience. Her religious development is a nothing which is a marked characteristic of many others in her peculiar condition, but her erudition in the other is unprecedented in gallinacy annals. Her reverence and attachment for her fowls is certainly the most remarkable of her thousand oddities. At the graves of three of the most prized of her favorites are placed headstones with inscriptions thereon. Original? Yes. Nancy is an author ess and has published a book containing her recipe for the treatment of hens' diseases, the epitaphs above mentioned, some religious poetry and a clever paraphrase of the golden rule.

She occupies two rooms of her house, her cow a third and her hens the fourth and the cellar. These dumb creatures, as she calls them, are her special pets and friends. The apartment allotted to the hens as a sleeping room is fitted with bunks with curtains drawn in front. Still another room is allotted to the hens for laying. This is provided with barrels filled with hay for the purpose. The cow's apartment is provided with a bed of husks across one side of the room, separated from the remainder of the room by a neat railing to the floor. Perhaps the reader may imagine that the house does not look neat in consequence of this innovation upon the usual customs. Not so however. Even the floor of the cow's apartment is as white as if just scrubbed. The apartments of the hens also are exceedingly neat, showing great care. These hens are her friends and have all been named by their owner. The following are some of the names as published in her book of poems: Feedilla Tiunus(?), Phebea Peaden, Leborty Tickinzy, Ihenty Tutaly, Jafy Metreaty, Shang go reamy Meleany, etc. Three number eighteen. Several years ago two of these pets died after a lingering illness. These were named Ada Queetie and Beauty Linna. They were quiet [illegible] and on their decease she wrote quite a lengthy obituary bewailing their untimely death. This was written in poetry and published in pamphlet form, copies of which she keeps for sale. Here is the opening stanza:

Poor little Ada Queetie has departed this life
Never to be here no more
No more to love, no more to speak
No more to be my friend
O how I long to see her with me live and well
Her heart and mine was united
Love and feelings deeply rooted for each other
She and I could never part.
I am left broken hearted

Her enforced isolation has nearly caused her death on several occasions. Frequently during the winter months she is utterly alone for weeks at a time, although she has neighbors within one hundred yards, and has nearly perished for want of fuel or food.

Although at all times of the year she is liable to receive visitors, there are certain occasions when they are almost certain to come. From the 4th of July until the 1st of October she receives a large number of visitors.

The visitor to her little house will be astonished at a first sight of the queer looking individual who is the subject of this sketch. Imagine the realization of Osrome(?), who glares forth from the pages of Dumas' "Monte Cristo," and you have her. Personify your "inner sight" the uncanny weirdness of the witches who do duty in Macbeth, and behold her. A well known litterateur said on seeing her, "She is Walter Scott's Meg Merrilies without her strength." You tap at the door and she comes to the window. If some one is with you whom she recognizes as a friend you are admitted before the first emotion has died away. If entirely unknown your admittance is more tardy. If after the first feeling of reverent admiration has died away, the visitor dares to laugh, he is met with a sharp rebuke from Nancy for laughing at one of God's pure creatures.

The small square room in which he finds himself has two or three small windows, but is very dark and the ceiling is low. Around the room is a row of chairs placed back against the wall, and very close together. The walls are hung with pictures, which are for the most part illustrations from magazines and nearly all represent horses, a sign of her early equestrian tastes, and the others are all of hens. Two or three of Nancy's works also embellish the walls. A table or two and a few books thereon, an old fashioned wall closet and a sideboard complete the list of the furnishing and ornamentation. Scanty, you think? No. It is too profuse, you would think if you saw it. The other front room is Nancy's sleeping apartment and the depository of her treasures. Some say that she has a considerable store of money laid away, but this is very doubtful and rather improbable under the circumstances. Opening from a rear room is a closet in which are kept her china and cooking utensils. Visitors are expected to purchase something, if only a glass of milk, and on this tribute Nancy lives. She always keeps a quantity of her books on hand for sale, and also photographs of herself.

It is said that once she had "a stove-old rare and valuable china," but this is only a tradition. No one ever saw it. Every one, however, asks to see it and desires to purchase only just some little thing. Of course, her stock in trade has been replenished many times, and each article sells at a fabulous profit. But it is all of old pattern, though without crack or flaw, and probably is just as well for the purpose of a memento as if it had been used a hundred years or more. It certainly lasts long.

If asked because of her china, she replies that she does not know, which is probably true enough. After she admits the visitor with a caution not to make a noise, for "it hurts my hade," she feels bound to exhibit her curios, "such as they are." Then after a few remarks about the weather, inquiries after her health may be made without impropriety. This launches her forth into a long discourse in which she makes the most astounding revelation that she has been murdered alive in cold blood by some of the stage drivers, and to whom she refers passionately in long and scornful diatribes. She also says that they "murder her hade." Confine her to question and answer, and she does not, at least, appear to be extraordinary, but let her have a chance, and off she starts at a rapid rate of utterance, as if wound up, with a jumble of hens' sickness, frightful crimes, horseback riding and religion, which astonishes and entertains her visitors in a manner which may be imagined—certainly not described.

Nancy is noted as the only person who has satisfactorily solved the much mooted question of what manner of fruit it was with which our first mother was tempted. She asserts and challenges denial that the cause of all the sin in the world was that the first woman ate swine's flesh, an assertion for the-ology ans to ponder.

Life in the Sunshine.

Herald of Health.

You cannot have too much of light and sunshine, either in your lives, or in your houses for good health. You may live, but it is not all in life to live. Merely to exist is but a small part of our work in this world. We should so live that body and mind are at all times in the best condition. We are then ready and able to do whatever duty may be required of us, in such a way that the doing thereof shall be pleasurable, and the reaction on ourselves and others be beneficial. It should be in fact the religious duty of every one so to live. Many a woman and child have been sacrificed to save the carpets and keep out the flies. Many a fit of illness has resulted from the same cause. Many a disappointed, cheerless life can be traced back to sunless rooms as a beginning. Multitudes of women and children are only half living to-day because only half fed. Sunshine and light and air are as much food for body and soul as the fruits and grains and vegetables that we take into our stomachs, and we cannot get a surfeit of them as food. The more we have the better.

ONE MAN'S ROMANCE.

Reuben Bossert's Wanderings During Thirty two Years—Strange Story of Adventure in the Land of the Black Trackers.

Pittsburg Dispatch.

"Yes, I have had a remarkable experience since I left Pittsburg for Pike's peak thirty two years ago," said Mr. Reuben Bossert, who was met by a reporter at the residence of his sister yesterday afternoon. Mr. Bossert is a small man, with a remarkable growth of beard streaked with gray, pleasing address, a native Pittsburger, and is visiting his native city for the first time in thirty two years, almost all of which time he spent in the gold fields of Australia. During an hour's very interesting conversation Mr. Bossert said:

"In 1852 I was a cigar maker eking out a scanty existence in this city. On April 9 of that year in company with a gentleman named Goff, of the south side, I left for Pike's peak and California to seek my fortune in the gold fields. We went by the overland route and after enduring many hardships arrived at the peak. At first we did very poorly, but in the last three weeks I remained there I succeeded in washing out $1,000 worth of gold. In one dish of dirt I washed out sixty three ounces of the yellow metal. Then came such flattering accounts of the Australian gold fields that Mr. Goff and I determined to try our luck there.

"Accordingly a few months later we sailed in the Scotch bark Abbott of 400 tons burden, Captain Ferguson, and were over three months on the voyage, although the usual time between San Francisco and Sydney was then but forty two days. The reason that we were so long on the voyage was that we were becalmed three weeks, during which time I don't suppose we sailed a mile a day. Our stock of provisions being almost exhausted, after three months had lifted we anchored off the island of Upolu in the South Pacific ocean to take on fresh water and provisions. We were on the island nine days. It was inhabited then by none but the native blacks, whose only dress was a string of beads.

"We landed at Sydney without accident, and proceeded to a place called Braidwood, on Major's creek, and at once located a claim. At Sydney I parted with Mr. Goff and have never seen him since, but I understand he returned to Pittsburg eight years ago and ultimately settled in Oregon. I made more money mining at Braidwood than I ever did before or since. In five weeks I made $2500. Reports reaching me that the diggings in Victoria were much better, I pulled up stakes and went to the latter place, where I located a claim at a place called Bendigo. I panned out poorly and spent nearly all I had previously made.

"From there I went to Ballarat, also in Victoria, and was present at the great riot at the latter place in June 1854. The English government had been taxing the miners seven shillings a month for the privilege of mining, and the miners rebelled and refused to pay it. Troops were brought on from Melbourne, and killed a large number of miners, but still the miners would not submit until this tax had been reduced to ten shillings a year. In consideration of this tax the soldiery protected the miner in his claim and there is no claim-jumping there as in California, although a miner [illegible] his claim unless he commences operations within twenty four hours from the time he first stakes it off. Every miner on paying this tax receives a certificate like this," and here he showed his for 1854, "and a miner who has no certificate should [illegible] he would be confiscated by the English government.

"Ultimately I settled at Pretty Gully, in Queensland, near the boundary of New South Wales, and at that place I still owned over the country. I always [illegible] several times thought myself about to meet death at the hands of the natives or black trackers.

"The most notable instance I ever experienced as regards the blacks was once when they surrounded a hut of bark in which myself and four companions had taken refuge. They filled the sides of the hut with the spears they threw, but we put them to flight with shotguns. In the melee one of my companions received a fatal stab from a spear. In Pretty Gully eleven years ago I met and married Miss Sophia Smith, who had been born and reared in the Shetland Isles, but who had emigrated to the land of gold with her parents. She died three years ago, but I have a little daughter 10 years of age who is my only child."

Mr. Bossert was 27 years of age when he left Pittsburg and now he is 54 years well. He brought his little daughter with him and intends to give her a thorough education, having made his fortune as he started to do in the land of promise.

CLOTHESPINS TWELVE FOR A CENT

Only 40 Per Cent. Profit to the Maker and 300 Per Cent. to the Dealer

New York Sun.

"To look at that clothespin," said the dealer, "you'd scarcely believe that the manufacturer could make and sell twelve of 'em for a cent and have a profit of more than 50 per cent, at that, would you?"

"No," replied the reporter, "but I don't know anything about clothespins."

"Well," said the dealer, "they whittle 'em out at the rate of eighty a minute. A beech or maple log a foot in diameter and ten feet long will whittle up into 12,000 clothespins. That log won't cost more than $2. The clothespins they cut out of it will be worth $96 40. It will take them two hours and a half to run that log into clothespins, which is whittling out 4800 an hour. At ten hours a day they get away with four logs and have on hand 48,000 clothespins, worth $385 60. Now the lumber for these pins has only cost $8 or so. If that was all the expense, a man with a clothespin factory might snap his fingers at the Standard Oil Company or Grant & Ward profits. But then those logs must be sawed up by four different kinds of saws. One separates the log into lengths of sixteen inches, another saws these into boards three-quarters of an inch thick, another cuts the boards into strips three-quarters of an inch square. These strips are caught on a wheel that hurries them to a gang of saws which chop them into clothespin lengths. These lengths are carried by a swift moving belt to a machine that seizes them, sets them in a lathe that gives them their shape in the twinkling of an eye and throws them to an attendant who feeds them to a saw that moves backward and forward as if it were madder than a snake. This saw chews out the slot that the washwoman shoves down over the clothes line, and the clothespin is ready, all but kiln drying and polishing.

"The latter is done in a revolving iron cylinder the same as castings are cleaned. All these processes cost money, and when the manufacturer comes to put up his goods for sale he finds that his profit on the 48,000 pins, his day's work, is only about $193. We pay the manufacturer a cent a dozen, or a trifle more than $8 a thousand. We are compelled in these close times to sell them at 4 cents a dozen, or $32 a thousand."

POOR CARLOTTA.

How she Won the Hearts of the Mexican People

Mexican Corr. Springfield Republican.

The emperor and empress are remembered with more love and justice as time goes on, and the latter is invariably spoken of as "Poor Carlotta." She won the hearts of the common people as the wife of no subsequent ruler has ever been able to do.

As one incident among hundreds illustrating this fact, let me tell you what occurred not long ago at the Teatro Principal. A well-known Mexican opera company had been delighting this music loving people for many nights, and the favorite prima donna—a gay and pretty little creature—was loaded with gifts and favors. One night, for an encore, the audience (who are always far more excitable and demonstrative here than our colder-blooded gatherings at the north) demanded of the prima donna one of the many little songs written at the fall of the empire, ridiculing the emperor and empress. The prima donna endeavored to divert them from the point, coquettishly singing other songs at her pleasure, but still the cries continued for the one at first demanded. In vain she did her best in other lines, the willful audience would not be diverted, the cries degenerated into howls and then into hisses till she was driven from the stage. The manager, going behind the scenes to exercise his personal authority, found her in a passion of tears. She explained that she had once been a maid in the palace, that the empress, discovering her talent, had been her patron and paid for her musical education, and that the very dress she was then wearing was poor Carlotta's gift. Could she use the advantages thus gained to ridicule her benefactor? Meanwhile a perfect pandemonium was raging at the theater; yells, cries and groans were deafening, many people were hastily leaving, and chairs had begun to rain down upon the stage from the galleries, with alarming indications that heavier articles might soon be expected to follow. The manager stepped to the footlights, amidst a shower of missiles, and explained the situation. With the characteristic volatility of the Latin race, the little girl was recalled in the midst of her tears and cheered to the echo, order was restored and the offensive song was rendered by the chorus without her assistance.

A train stopped at a station on a Texas railroad where a gang of workmen were digging a trench. A lady passenger, stepping to the station platform, asked one of the laborers what he was digging for. "For a dollar and a quarter a day, mum," said he.

A GOOD COMPARISON.

The Rev. William Rodlatt, a well-known Methodist clergyman, residing at Naples, draws the following amusing, but apt comparison between Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., and a ferret.

"A ferret when placed at the entrance of a rat hole, enters the aperture, travels along the passage, seizes upon the rat, exterminates his existence and draws the animal's defunct carcass to the light. And in like manner have I found Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge to operate upon worms, those dreadful and dangerous tormentors of children. This remedy, like the ferret, enters the aperture of the mouth, travels down the gullet, hunts round the stomach and lays hold of the worms, shakes the life out of the reptiles, sweeps clean their den, and carries their carcasses clear out of the system. This, at least, has been the effect of the Vermifuge upon my children."

MISGUIDED ZEALOTS

Both republicans and democrats can pause in their campaign arrangements which will require very little attention for a month at least to laugh at the Pittsburgh convention and its cranky performances There are some who think that the democrats helped to bring about that grotesque shock of forces but this is hardly credible or at least there is no reason to think so other than the blundering way in which the assembly went about its work, coupled with the fact that somebody was always on the lookout to prevent a good word for the republican ticket and to hold up an anti-Blaine plank There is a theory that the democrats are anxious to have as much of a temperance movement as possible for the assumed reason that it cannot possibly get democratic votes, while it will get whatever votes may be cast from the Republican party. It is true that the people who work in the interests of temperance and other genuine social reforms either are or have been in the republican party, and most of them will probably stay here, but unfortunately for any such scheme as the one imagined by those who look upon this convention as a job put up by the democrats the temperance vote is not prevalent enough in any doubtful state to in the least hurt the republicans

There is much to be said in favor of the cause of temperance, and nothing to be said against it, and so far as we know there is nothing to be said against the candidate of the convention Governor St. John of Kansas. Most of the men and women whose names appear among those of the active participants in the deliberations and wrangles of the convention are favorably known and it was very kind in the platformmakers to acknowledge the good in the government If there were no drunkards in the country, or even fewer than there are, it would be less expensive and less troublesome to govern, and we should all get along just as well, and some of us a great deal better,—there can be no doubt of this Not only is there no doubt or disagreement among decent people on this question but there will be no ticket in the field in opposition to this one put out at Pittsburg, there will be no convention to oppose it. The ticket will have clear sailing from first to last, and Mr St John will be kindly treated as he deserves to be but he will never be made president on the strength of this one idea of prohibition, nor will he cut much of a figure in the work of making a president The idea, when introduced into national politics, is no more potent than the idea that those who use tobacco can never go to heaven, or the idea that those who habitually eat warm bread are gradually but surely undermining the manhood and virtue of the country. There are people who hold these ideas, and there are other one-idea people whose notions appear to the masses as so absurd that they must bear to be called cranks with as good a grace as possible, for the wicked masses will speak of them as such now and then In choosing associates most of us avoid people who drink alcohol and take snuff while in choosing a president we would not be governed by any such test. Mr Blaine and Mr Cleveland have each shown a capacity and a clearheadedness quite equal to that of Mr St John, and the capacity and right policy is what we are after in a president If any man or woman has any nasty personal habits then he or she is so much the bigger fool yet some men who smoke and drink wine have been the greatest and best rulers the world has ever known If the people of one idea—and this temperance idea is a good one were to carry it into national politics and make total abstinence the chief requisite, then Guiteau the very bad would be on a par with St John though few of these temperance people would have anything to do with a bad man It is true that a national convention of prohibitionists did at Chicago on the 20th of June, nominate Mr S C Pomeroy of Kansas to be president of the United States for the prohibitionists and Mr Pomeroy is regarded as a rather bad man—say not a good man by a jugfull—if we may be permitted to use the jug expression in speaking of a temperance candidate This other prohibition national convention uttered a platform that was quite equal to the Pittsburg one and similar to it in favoring citizenship for everybody, including the Chinese and the Indians. It began by declaring God to be the author of civil government, and it censured the republican party In fact it was on the point of nominating this same Mr St John for president, Why that convention and nomination goes unmentioned now we cannot imagine Some may say it was a sort of "American" affair in the Know-nothing sense, but this is not so, as is seen by its love of Indians and Chinamen It favored woman suffrage as this later convention did, and had the same Rev J Blanchard with his hatred for freemasonry in its deliberations In fact it was quite like this affair of Thursday, with the difference that there was not quite so much of it. The former convention did not rise to the absurdity and crankiness of raising a campaign fund by issuing certificates of ten dollar denomination "payable in heaven" or in other ways behave so shockingly, though one is little better or worse than the other in any respect except in the nominee

THE OREGONIAN is always an advocate of the temperance cause, and would like to have the liquor traffic abolished it will always support prudent measures for the attainment of this end, and believes in work and agitation, seeing what advance has been made since the first feeble protest against drunkenness at funerals, which was the beginning of practical temperance work Wise and reasonable legislation on this subject will receive our support, but when prohibition, or anybody under its name, comes in the form we find it in at Pittsburg, we know that it retards the cause of temperance and look upon it with distrust, if not impatience. Zeal is a good quality, but common sense is a better When such people as those who made themselves ridiculous at Pittsburg can do no better than exert what influence they have in the direction of weakening the party wherein are all the friends of temperance, then it is none too good for them that they become the laughing-stock of politicians who are practical enough to work toward the accomplishment of something possible, and none too practical to uphold the party in which there is greatest possibility of good.

Mr Blaine is to be commended for the conservative tone of his letter in treating of the relations of this government to foreign powers He says that this country has no cause or desire to quarrel with any body The New York Tribune says that "when the mantle of the chief magistrate falls upon his shoulders it will be found that the aggressive Americanism which Mr. Blaine displayed in congress will be judiciously tempered with the ripe wisdom which comes of a long experience in public affairs

While it is getting plainer every day that some of the Irish as well as the German and Scandinavian citizens will vote for Blaine it remains true that he was nominated mainly to catch the American vote, but for goodness sake don't give away such a great political secret.

There is a concern in Philadelphia which furnishes parrots guaranteed to talk and they cost but five dollars each. In case of another postponement of the democratic ratification Polly might be utilized, if promptly ordered A monkey might be had from the circus

This is the time of year when assistant secretaries and chief clerks at Washington lay back and enjoy the full homage due a cabinet officer from a man who comes in and "wants a something real bad and wants it right then"

It is predicted that the failure of whisky in its time-honored and temperance-granted function of curing a snake bite will help Governor St.

CAMPAIGN SCANDALS

The history of national elections in this country amply illustrates the truth of the remark which we have several times made that attacks upon the private character of candidates, when persistently and vindictively sustained, have usually if not in all cases, reacted in favor of the accused The people indignantly resented the attacks that were made upon Washington by his jealous enemies which he characterized as so indecent and exaggerated as could scarcely be applied to a Nero a notorious defaulter or even to a common pickpocket The finer saints accused Jefferson of being a Jacobin and communist the abject tool of French atheists and libertines He was personally charged with the grossest immoralities and it was asserted as proved beyond all question that he had obtained his property by fraud and robbery that in one instance he had defrauded and robbed a widow and fatherless children of an estate of which he was executor of two thousand pounds sterling by keeping the property and paying them in money at the nominal rate when it was worth no more than forty to one The people heard these charges with contempt and twice elected him president Andrew Jackson was malignantly assailed as a murderer a military usurper and a bigamist but these assaults seemed only to exasperate his supporters without drawing from him a single vote that would otherwise have been cast for him When Harrison was nominated in 1840 a democratic paper attempted to ridicule him as a coarse backwoodsman and cider toper It said Give him a barrel of hard cider and settle upon him a pension of two thousand a year and our word for it he will sit the remainder of his days contented in a log cabin It was this utterance that made possible that famous log cabin and hard cider campaign and started the tidal wave that swept the democracy out of power, strongly intrenched as it supposed itself to be As Daniel Webster said in his well remembered speech at Saratoga in October that year The taunt at humble life proceeded from the party which claimed a monopoly of the purest democracy The whole party appeared to enjoy it or at least they countenanced it by silent acquiescence * * * But it touched a tender point in the public feeling It naturally roused indignation What was intended as a reproach was immediately seized on as merit 'Be it so! Be it so!' was the instant burst of the public voice. Let him be the log cabin candidate What you say in scorn we will shout with all our lungs From this day forward we have our cry of rally And we shall see whether he who has dwelt in one of the rude abodes of the west may not become the best house in the country

The talk about Grant's low personal habits his drinking and fondness for horses and "bull pups" did not change a vote The republican party wanted a man who was sound and powerful on the main issue before the country in 1872, and paid no attention to considerations which would have been very weighty in other connections And it will be the same this year The candidates will be judged by their capacity and integrity in public and official life not by their private lives so far as the campaign is to be one of men not of measures or of parties The republicans in Boston and New York where the most significant and powerful demonstrations have been made have already pitched the campaign upon the latter issue that of parties rather than of men and we trust that the disposition thus far disclosed on their part will be maintained by reputable newspapers and that private scandals will be discussed only in the police gazettes

The Oswego Times and Express commends the Philadelphia Press for refusing to print scandalous attacks on Governor Cleveland and says that "there is scarcely anything more to be deprecated in politics than a resort to scandalous personalities It scarcely ever happens otherwise than that it injures the party which resorts to it" In this respect the press of this country is far more decent than it formerly was Theodore Parker said, not long before his death "The general character of the press since the end of the last century has decidedly improved, as any one may convince himself of by comparing the newspapers of that period with those of the present The newspapers were so reckless eighty years ago as to compel Jefferson to say 'Nothing can now be believed which is seen in a newspaper Truth itself becomes suspicious by being put into that polluted vehicle'" And in this respect the newspapers reflect the sentiment of the age The public men of our time are more honest and virtuous and better citizens than the public men of years ago Dr Dorchester tells us that about the commencement of the present century in many of the New England towns desecration of the Sabbath lewdness, neglect of the sanctuary profanity and low cavils at the bible were common and the last vestiges of Puritan morals seemed well-nigh irrevocably effaced Our politics were then of the most exasperating character Such was the violent and malignant feeling prevailing that federalists would not take the risk of trying their causes before a democratic judge and democrats would do the same in regard to federal judges There is no doubt that the general public tone is purer, and that there is less malignant partisanship now than at any period since the adoption of the constitution There are very few newspapers at the present time conducted on the narrow platform of the papers edited by Duane, Cheetham Freneau and Callender eighty years ago These papers were the personal organs of the editors and so malignantly personal as to compel the inference that the editor had a personal grievance against the public man whose conduct or measures he criticised Now the public acts of a man are for the most part treated of as such and apart from considerations of a private nature This change in the conduct of the press has doubtless contributed to the improvement in the public tone which it at the same time reflects.

There are rumors of still another national presidential convention, to be held at Chicago on the 30th—next week Wednesday A call was issued on the 18th of April last by the Illinois Trades Assembly, and Butler who is fishing for the nomination, has caused it to be warmed up into a national affair It is stated by those interested here that responses have been received from twenty-three states and about 110 cities, A laboring man will probably be nominated for the vice presidency with General Butler if one can be found to accept, which is somewhat doubtful after the example of West the greenbacker from Mississippi, who declined a similar honor tendered him by his party In addition to the labor strings which General Butler is pulling it is predicted by his friends here that certain important developments in New York will take place to strengthen his candidacy These friends also point to the compliment paid him by the New York Sun of reprinting his Chicago speech, and following it by an editorial strongly indorsing him as a sound representative democrat This they regard as very significant since the Sun's hostility to Cleveland has never been disguised, and the ticket nominated at Chicago has received but a negative indorsement A bolt by the Sun in favor of the much nominated Butler they therefore regard as among the probabilities and this may be part of the movement in New York expected by his friends

Seven Mule Barnum, the same old chairman who led the mule brigade to defeat eight years ago, is selected by the Cleveland leaders Now they must hustle around and get him a barrel and some cipher dispatches He must have his old kit of tools to work with, and even with them he labors under the disadvantage of having exposed his methods

No one ever started for Ireland—not excepting St Patrick himself—on a more sensible errand than that which takes Father Riordan of New York over there. He goes to see what he misguided people who think it easy to make a living and land here to be a burden on their hard working friends or to suffer as people do everywhere who cannot earn a living and have no home His efforts will also extend to the prevention of vicious classes from coming, so far as it can be done.

The gossips, despairing of success in their attempts to marry Mary Anderson the actress to a foreign duke are now making of her a Carmelite nun. She would doubtless look very pretty in the Carmelite costume which consists of bare feet and a striped dress but it wouldn't pay like barefoot business on the stage Father Hyacinth was a Carmelite until he met Mrs Loyson

The New York Times is beginning to gag at its dose Chairman Barnum with his mules and forged letters is a little too much

The veteran temperance man Neal Dow is neither for St John or Subsidy Pomeroy James G Blaine is good enough for him

I am a merchant and planter writes Mr T N Humphrey of Tennessee, "and it gives me great pleasure to say that for severe coughs and colds Allen's Lung Balsam is the best remedy now offered for sale I have induced many to try it with the best of results

CITY.

FRIGHTENED HORSES.—As the circus parade was passing First street yesterday a horse belonging to [illegible], standing in front of McKercher & [illegible], became alarmed at the camels and [illegible] wildly around. Mr. Burgis held to the [illegible] it broke and then some one tied a hand[kerchief] over the eyes of the frightened animal, which shut out his view of the procession and quieted it. By the time the elephants came along the [illegible] had slipped off one of the horse's eyes [illegible] he saw the huge brutes he went into convulsions, and came near going through the [illegible] front of McKercher's store. His antics [illegible] a lively scattering of the spectators in the [illegible]. As the procession neared the corner of Second and Main streets a horse driven by Mr. M. Kenzie [illegible] took fright, dashed over the sidewalk, through a picket fence and started down a [illegible] passage between the buildings. The driver, [illegible] to get out, got his foot caught in the wheel [illegible] dragged some distance, but the passage [illegible] narrow for the cart, the horse tore himself [illegible] probably saving the man's life. The circus [illegible] clear the way here, but it was brought [illegible] at Victoria. There is a hack stand [illegible] line of Government street in that [illegible] the hack drivers are obliged to remain on [illegible] their carriages. Cole's circus coming [illegible] street saw the long line of hacks standing [illegible] Government street and came to a halt. After [illegible] some time a person asked the driver of [illegible] vehicle what he was waiting for. "Wait[ing for the] funeral to pass," was the reply. That [illegible] never hear the last of waiting for that [funeral].

[illegible] AND TRANSCONTINENTAL.—The Boston [illegible] of this company. The next loan due is [the] loan of $1,200,000, which matures early in [illegible]. The present management, it is said, has [illegible] the commission only on its loans, and has [illegible] charged over 6 per cent interest. By the [illegible] with the Oregon & California company, [illegible] Transcontinental a $3,000,000 loan is re[illegible] per cent. The Oregon & California second [illegible] bonds were pledged to secure the 5 per [illegible] on this loan, and by the terms of [illegible] the Oregon & California company [illegible] and become responsible for the com[illegible] 000,000. Of course Oregon & Transcontinental [illegible] that it had expended on the Oregon [illegible], some $1,600,000. Oregon & Transcontinental is comparatively comfortable circumstanced when compared with the past. The [illegible] floating debt of $11,000,000 is provided [illegible] the 6 per cent dividends on its $14,000,000 [illegible] Railway & Navigation stock which rival [illegible] guaranteed by the Northern Pacific [illegible].

RECOVERED FROM THE RIVER.—About 5 [o'clock] last evening the watchman at Ainsworth [dock] discovered the dead body of a man floating in [the water] near the bows of the steamship State of [California]. It was secured and the coroner notified [illegible] charge of the remains. A jury was summoned [illegible] an inquest commenced. A steerage ticket [illegible] and a little over $2.0 in money were [found on] the body, which was supposed to be that of [illegible], the man who fell from the steamer [illegible] the night of her sailing. The ticket was [illegible] that the name thereon could not be [illegible]. A person who had been in company with [the deceased on the] day of his death was examined, but [illegible] little information concerning him except [that he] thought his name was Green. The inquest [illegible] till this morning.

[illegible] HUNTERS.—Early yesterday morning [illegible] Chinese, each carrying a shotgun on his [shoulder], were seen marching in single file on the [illegible] and finally striking off into the woods. [There can] be no doubt that they were bound on a [hunting] expedition. Inasmuch as every pheasant [illegible] represents a marketable commodity [illegible] fifty cents the incentive for indulging [illegible] what white folks deem as sport is easily [illegible]. Heretofore Chinese hunters were entirely un[known], but now that they have found out the [illegible] may be expected to multiply like flies. [illegible] brings as high a price as it does at [illegible] Chinamen may be expected to beat the [illegible] and members of the Rod and Gun club [illegible] sell their guns and stay at home or [illegible].

[illegible] OF THE CIRCUS LICENSE.—W. W. [illegible], was yesterday notified by [illegible] that since he took out a license for his [illegible] here the council had passed an or[dinance] increasing the fee for such license to $150 [per] performance, and that he will be required to [pay that] license. He was also informed that [illegible] paid for license under the old ordinance [illegible] application. Mr. Cole informed [illegible] reporter yesterday that he did not in[tend to pay the] increased license fee and would contest [illegible] in the courts. Last evening the matter [was] compromised by the payment of $150 by Mr. [Cole in] addition to the $30 already paid, the seating [illegible] of the circus having been greatly reduced.

[illegible] RATES.—The traffic department of the [illegible] Co. some time since made a rate for tickets [illegible] to Astoria and return good for four [days]. Occasionally a person would be un[able to return] within the four days, and thought it [hard to be] obliged to pay another fare for a return [trip]. The company have now decided to issue round [trip tickets] from Portland to Astoria or from Astoria [to Portland] for $2 50, good till the 15th of September. [This] will give Astoria folks a chance to share [the benefits] of round trip tickets, an accommoda[tion they] have not heretofore enjoyed.

[illegible] WITHOUT LIGHTERING.—The Kirkwood [arrived] up from Astoria at noon yesterday in tow of [the] Alice and E. N. Cooke. She is drawing [illegible] inches of water, but by the aid of two boats [illegible] expects to bring her here without lighter[ing]. The great advantage in having two boats is [that when] the ship touches bottom or sucks there [is a boat] on each side, she is pushed straight [illegible] the obstruction, whereas with only one [boat] touches bottom she is at once turned [illegible] and the boat loses control of her.

[illegible] MARKET.—John Wesley, one of the [illegible] pioneers of this city, and well known to [illegible], made his appearance on the streets [illegible] the role of a horse dealer. Wesley was [illegible] deputy marshal here in the days of [illegible] is now an honest granger on Lewis [river. He] complains that there seems to be less [illegible] in the city, and he finds a poor market [illegible].

[illegible] A VACATION.—Rev. Dr. Marvin will [preach for] the last time before his vacation to-mor[row at] the Congregational church. During his ab[sence the] pulpit will be supplied by Rev. Mr. Ellis [illegible] and Rev. R. T. Hall of Mt. Vernon, O. [Dr. Marvin] and his wife will be out of the city dur[ing the month] of August. They expect to spend the [time in] California, going to San Francisco by the [illegible].

[illegible] BY ERYSIPELAS.—John Kelly of the firm [of illegible] & Deans, is seriously ill at St. Vincent's [hospital. While] fishing near Soda springs a few days [ago he fell] and injured his elbow. On his re[turn] erysipelas attacked the injured limb and [he was taken] to the hospital for treatment. He was [illegible] considerably better last evening and his [condition is] favorable.

[illegible] OFFERED.—The rectorship of Trinity [church in] this city will not be permitted to remain [vacant] any longer than possible. It has already [been offered] to the Rev. Mr. Foote of San Jose, a [talented] gentleman, who is well calculated [illegible] to fill the place left vacant by the Rev. [Mr. illegible], but no answer has yet been received.

[illegible]—Mrs. M. A. L. Holmes, one of the early [pioneer] women of this state, died at 6:15 last even[ing at her] residence near Oregon City, where she has [lived for] the past forty years. She was well known [illegible] of this state, and her hospitality and [illegible] have endeared her to a large circle [of friends] by whom she will be long remembered.

[illegible] HOME FOR BURIAL.—The remains of [illegible], who died recently in San Francisco, [have] been brought to Oregon for burial. The [funeral will take] place at 2 o'clock this afternoon [from the] residence of the deceased's son, J. [illegible], East Portland. The services will be pri[vate, only] members of the family being present.

[illegible] OF STEAMERS.—The steamer Columbia [arrived with passengers] and freight from San Francisco ar[rived at] 11:30 P. M. yesterday and left Astoria at [illegible], arriving in this city about 1 o'clock this [morning]. The steamer Walla Walla also arrived [illegible] and left up the river immediately, [illegible] soon after the Columbia.

[illegible]—The respective presidents and mem[bers of the] different Catholic societies of this city are [invited] to be present at the ceremony of [laying the cornerstone] of the new cathedral at Van[couver on] Sunday, July 27, at 3 P. M. The boat [leaves] Portland at 8 P. M. from the foot of Alder street.

[illegible] THE SYNAGOGUE.—Rev. Dr. Wechsler [of illegible], now visiting Portland, will deliver [a lecture at] Beth Israel synagogue, corner of [illegible] streets, at 10 o'clock this morning. [illegible] highly recommended, and all that [hear] him will have a rare intellectual [treat].

FAREWELL PERFORMANCES BY THE CIRCUS.—Yesterday afternoon Cole's circus played to a tent full and in the evening to a fair house, notwithstanding rain just before the doors opened and continued threatening weather. When it is considered that 82,000 persons attended the four performances early this month, the crowds yesterday showed pretty conclusively that the circus did not lack in merit. Very few shows of this kind have the nerve to visit a place twice in the same season. The fact is that Cole's shows are so much better than any one even remotely expected, that everybody was agreeably surprised both in the menagerie and the arena performances—surprised not particularly at the greatness of the enterprise but that so great a thing on wheels should be brought to sparsely settled Oregon and Washington. It is safe to say that ninety nine out of every hundred who visited Cole's shows saw more in the way of the novel, the curious and the startling than they, from past experience, had been led to expect. The only complaint heard is that the arenic performance is too short, but it must be remembered that there are three rings and a continuous succession of acts that does not permit one to become weary of the show.

FIREWATER AND THE INDIAN.—J. W. Passer, a white man, and an Indian with the patriotic name of Liberty, were brought down from Pendleton last night and lodged in the county jail for selling whisky to the noble red man. Liberty pleads guilty, but Passer denies the charge and tells the old old story about having hidden a bottle of whisky under a house and the Indian finding and stealing it. The case will come up in the United States court to-day. Liberty would probably not have been found out in his spirituous traffic had not the warrior whom he supplied imbibed too freely and beaten his wife most cruelly.

MORE RAIN.—The weather has taken an unfavorable turn again. Yesterday was cloudy and threatening and just before sunset heavy drops of rain fell for a short time. As the sun was shining at the same time hopeful ones said that there would be no more rain as the little shower was caused by the devil beating his wife. The row between this amiable couple must have been kept up for before midnight quite a shower fell and at that time there was every appearance of a continuance of rainy weather.

PASSING OPIUM TO A PRISONER.—Lem Wy called at the city jail yesterday to see a friend confined there. While talking to him Wy passed a small package of opium through the grate which was seized by the prisoner. Capt Hare observed the transaction and in about one second Wy was in a dark cell and the prisoner was giving up his anticipated pleasure of a dose of the much loved narcotic. Wy will explain why he did this thing before Judge Moreland to-day.

FOUND PLENTY OF LANDS.—A number of the eastern excursionists now in the city having complained that they had seen no farming country here were prevailed on by Professors Pratt and Ruby yesterday to take a trip up to Salem. They saw a sample of Oregon farms, and having been assured that the further up the valley they went the finer the country was, they returned perfectly satisfied.

LUMBER ATTACHED.—The sheriff served upon Sam Harris of Sellwood, a writ of attachment that had been issued by the state circuit court at the suit of S. Herman. Harris runs a sawmill at Sellwood and neither the mill nor the machinery being his the sheriff was obliged to levy upon some lumber, logs, wagons, horses, etc. The amount to secure which the attachment was issued is $480.

THE HOWARD TRIAL.—A large number of witnesses were examined yesterday in this case, the prosecution resting and the defense opening their case about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. When court adjourned at night there still remained several more witnesses to be examined. The case will be concluded to-day as the court will hold an evening session if necessary.

RACES AT THE DRIVING PARK.—Two races occupied the attention of horsemen and others at the Portland driving park yesterday afternoon. In the three-minute class the entries were Chance, Lucy and Sheriff, the latter winning in 2:50¾. In the 2:45 class the entries were Lily Weaver, Dudley and Oleander, the latter winning in 2:42.

NINE HOURS STAY.—Passengers on the Lurline to-night will be able to enjoy nine hours out of Astoria at either the North beach, Fort Canby or the seaside. The trip is made outside of business hours, the boat starting at 9 P. M. and returning by 4 A. M. Monday.

DEATH OF COL. I. R. MOORES.

Col. I. R. Moores died at his rooms in Dekum's block last evening of apoplexy. He had a slight paralytic stroke a short time since from the effects of which he had not entirely recovered, although he had been able to attend to his duties. He was into his desk yesterday morning, and remarked that he had overslept himself. He went to his luncheon at the usual hour and ate heartily, but remarked to a friend that he did not feel well. He did not return to his office and about 3 o'clock was found lying on his bed at his rooms partially undressed and unconscious. Dr. Watkinds was at once summoned, but the sufferer was past medical aid, and died at 10:30 last night without having recovered consciousness. His sons arrived from Salem by special train and were in attendance at the deathbed. Mrs. Moores is in the east. The body will be embalmed and taken to Salem, but it is not yet settled when the funeral will take place. Mr. Moores was a native of Danville, Ohio, and one of the early pioneers of this state. He has been a resident of Salem for many years and was widely known and universally respected. He was in business at Salem for about fifteen years, was a member of the legislature and has filled many positions of trust. He has been connected with the land office of the O. & C. railroad since it was instituted. He was 51 years of age and leaves several sons to mourn the loss of a kind father.

THE EAST SIDE.

ACTIONS BY AN ADMINISTRATOR.

William Macbeth, administrator of the estate of John Carnegie, has sued Frank Payne, for whom Carnegie worked as pattern maker for $90 amount alleged due him as wages at the time of his death. Payne admits the account, but says it is subject to a set-off which will appear at the trial, which occurs in Justice Greene's court to-day. Macbeth has also commenced a second suit for the recovery of $18 00, alleged value of tools of the deceased in defendant Payne's possession. The claim is based upon an inventory of a chest of tools used by deceased, but Payne proposes to prove that several of the articles inventoried were his property. Macbeth was the confidential friend and depositary of Carnegie, both being Scotchmen. He has $1000 deposited in trust by deceased, who died intestate without heirs, and the money will escheat to the state if no rightful claimants appear.

A GARNISHEE CASE DEVELOPS A SECRET.

Charley Mayo, who has been working for Mr. Blakely on Bailey's new building, had his wages garnished Saturday for a $15 bill contracted at Hayes' billiard hall. Mayo subsequently filed an affidavit setting forth that he was married and that the money earned was necessary for the support of his family. This unexpected proceeding puzzles the boys, not one of whom had heard of his marriage, and now are interesting themselves to ascertain the who, when and where of the matter. No one, however, seems able to give the desired information, his father even not having been let into the secret. They will probably find out next Tuesday when the case comes up in Justice Colman's court.

NARROW ESCAPE—CLEVER RESCUE.

The horse and truck of F. L. Lent was backing on the elevated roadway on the west side of Bock's stable last evening when the horse got his hind leg over the edge of the roadway and fell. Efforts were made to relieve him from his precarious position, but in vain, and in a short time the animal got another leg overboard, and it became impossible to haul him back on the roadway. Consequently stout ropes were attached to him, and the tugs and neck yoke straps cut and about twenty men pressed into service to lower the animal, which weighs about 1100 pounds, into the slough, a distance of about 22 feet. This feat was performed successfully, the horse landing in about two feet of water, in which he laid for a few minutes and then climbed out having sustained but a few scratches. The rescue was very cleverly effected, and the horse and his deliverers are to be congratulated on the result. The railing simply consists of the bar and plate, and to prevent the repetition of such an accident it will be necessary to place additional rails along the lower portion.

NOTES.

LOGAN AND CLEVELAND.

YAQUINA BAY, July [illegible]

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Will you enlighten a voter as to whether John A. Logan, republican nominee for vice president, is a Catholic or Protestant? Secondly I see by your paper that Cleveland, democratic nominee for president, is likely to lose a certain portion of the Irish vote on account of his severe persecution to said Irish at some past time. What was the nature of the persecution?

A VOTER.

[(1) Logan is a Methodist. (2) There are several reasons to account for Irish opposition to Cleveland. As governor of New York he vetoed the bill providing for less hours of labor per day and the bill reducing the fare on the elevated railroad to five cents, both of which actions were detrimental to the laboring classes. Besides this his election is earnestly opposed by the Irish World, the principal organ of the Irish in this country. In the very latest issue of his paper the editor denounces Cleveland as an enemy to Ireland and its people and offers as proof extracts from various English journals favoring his election as president of the United States on the ground that he is disliked by the Irish.]

BOTHERED BY A BELL.

PORTLAND, July 25.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

It is bad enough to have to lie on night after night to the bands of music that fill First street with sounds of varying harmony, but lately at the close of the concert which is prolonged to half past eight o'clock, a bell swung with all the energy that human ity can exert clangs and bangs away giving not a moment of rest or peace until the clock and this for the purpose of drawing attention to a sale of [illegible] for races. This is a little more than the honest tradesmen and lovers of peace and quietness should be called on to bear. A Stock Herder Supposed to have been Killed by Indians—Movements of Railroad Land Examiners, etc.

UMATILLA, July 24.

E. A. Kramer of Foster has been missing since the 13th inst. He has been herding a band of horses near Castle Rock and had been crossing some at that point when last heard from. The long suffering and down trodden red man has objected to parties running their stock on the Washington territory side of the Columbia. It is thought that he has been foully dealt with by the Indians as he was known to have [had] a sum of money on his person at the time. His blankets and Winchester rifle were found not far from the river on the Yakima side. A reward of $50 is offered by Mrs. Kramer for information concerning him.

The corps of Northern Pacific land examiners under W. O. Girdwood are at present located opposite town. They are working their way along the Columbia towards the mouth of the Yakima.

Fall sowing grain in Umatilla county is looking fine. There will be an average crop.

REPLY TO QUIET.

CHURCH OF ST. LAWRENCE,
PORTLAND, July [illegible], 1884.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In to-day's issue I noticed a communication signed in course anonymously "Quiet," bitterly complaining against the ringing of the new bell recently mounted in the belfry of St. Lawrence's church over which I preside at present. The writer takes it upon himself to say: "The people in the vicinity of the church complain that the bell is rung too often and too long," and subjoins that the priest in charge pleases himself in this, without respecting the rights of the public on the matter. This is in a nutshell the complaint made by "Quiet." Had I known this to be a true fact I would willingly and gladly have consented to a reasonable compromise. Fearing that the ringing might possibly cause disagreeableness to some, I made some time ago inquiries through which I learned that the ringing of St. Lawrence's bell was no annoyance to my neighbors, both non-Catholics as well as Catholics, but that it was rather looked upon as an agreeable time piece. This being the case I have but very little confidence in Quiet's statement.

Certainly neighbor Quiet does not belong to that class of quiet neighbors who expressed their favorable views affecting the frequent ringing of the church bell. Peace is an essential treasure, should the reformer [illegible] the ringing continue to prove annoying to him I desire he would refer to me concerning his complaint, as I entertain not the slightest doubt that we will arrive at a sensible understanding.

It is by no means my ambition to be at variance with my neighbors. I believe what Plato says—that there is nothing more pernicious to a community than discord, nor nothing more profitable than peace and a good understanding among its inhabitants.

Should, however, neighbor Quiet not condescend to confer with me on the matter, then it would be desirable to have his right name in full. This no doubt would throw considerable light on the question, as I would probably disclose the real causes upon which his complaint is based, and thus matters could be corrected more speedily and more satisfactorily.

When Quiet sarcastically says that the priest in charge enjoys himself in ringing the bell he makes a mistake, resting, to say the least, on misinformation. The ringing of church bells is regulated by church ordinances, and not by attending priests. The bell of St. Lawrence's does, as yet, not ring so often as bells ring in regularly and well established parishes, but hope is fondly entertained that that day will soon dawn for St. Lawrence's.

A third erroneous statement is made by Quiet when he alleges that the bell is frequently rung five minutes at one time, whereas the truth of the matter is that the average length of time for ringing is but two minutes. It would be impossible for him to point out a single time when it was rung five minutes. Sometimes a good song well rendered appears long to the hearer if his mind is prejudiced against the performer.

The last error committed in the communication under consideration is found in the statement that those days are past when people flocked together for prayer seven times a day at the summons of the church bell. No those days are not past. It is practiced now as of old although not in our midst. Heaven may grant Quiet to see the day when such summons vibrate the air of our thriving city.

At all events Quiet has been a little hasty in his many erroneous statements. It is not an act of a prudent man to rush into print with every thought that flashes through the mind. Quiet shows a lack of reflection and a want of reliable information. I do not blame him for not knowing better, but he is surely deserving of censure for writing about matters of which he is ignorant.

B. OLBERTH, Rector.

The Spokane Review tells of a shocking accident which happened on Monday to Miss Kate Weston, a young lady about 20 years of age. She was riding leisurely out Front street, and when near E. J. Webster's residence a number of worthless curs rushed out at the animal. The horse not only bucked and as the lady was riding in a man's saddle with no chance to hold on she was thrown. Her foot caught in the stirrup and the horse becoming frightened rushed around in a circle attempting to kick the lady at every move, she being unable to assist herself. In the struggle both shoes were torn completely off the unfortunate young lady, and at last the horse struck her in the left side of the head, knocking her out of the stirrup. Dr. C. S. Penfield, who fortunately happened to be at Mr. Webster's house, hastened to her aid at the first sign of danger but not in time to prevent the accident. Miss Weston was taken to Mr. Webster's residence, and the doctor did all in his power for her relief. She was suffering from the shock and concussion, but as there was no evidence of fracture no doubt she will recover in a few days. Her escape from instant death was almost a miracle as those who witnessed the accident thought she would be killed outright.

Little Children Tied Together.

Milwaukee Wisconsin.

A novel sight was witnessed at the union depot a few days ago. There arrived on an early morning Chicago train an immigrant family from Denmark, consisting of husband, wife and thirteen children. When they alighted from the train the man and woman each carried in their arms an infant and were followed into the depot by the remainder of the numerous family. The thirteen children were all joined by a small sized rope, which was fastened around the arm of each child. They were tied together in Denmark and in this manner the long journey was made. The strangers remained at the depot until afternoon, when they departed for Minnesota, where they will settle upon a farm. All were comfortably clothed, and the happy father appeared to be well supplied with money. The father and mother were apparently above 45 years of age. The visitors attracted considerable curiosity during their brief stay at the depot.

CABLE'S NEW ORLEANS HOME.

A Description of his Workshop—His own Account of his Alabama Address.

New Orleans Picayune.

Some days ago Mr. Cable, the eminent New Orleans novelist, returned to the city from a visit to the state of Alabama, where he had gone to fulfill some literary engagements, and shortly thereafter a reporter found opportunity to call on him.

The author lives in an unpretending but comfortable house painted olive gray or, as the policeman on the beat in directing the reporter described it, smoke color. It is on Eighth street, standing back from the roadway with a pretty green yard in front, in which are beds of flowers and two large orange trees in full fruit. A pretty little girl met the visitor at the foot of the steps that led up to the broad, covered veranda, which shaded the entire front of the house. At the door was found the little lady's father, who pleasantly greeted the comer and conducted him into the "workshop," as Mr. Cable termed his study.

While the visitor was drinking iced lemonade which was immediately served, and which the warmth of the weather made extremely refreshing, he looked around.

MR. CABLE'S WORKSHOP.

To see from what surroundings he drew his inspiration. The room is of moderate dimensions, perhaps fifteen feet square, with high windows on two sides, and a wide brick fireplace on the third. Doors connect it with other portions of the house. Around the walls to the height of Mr. Cable's face—and he is not above medium stature—is a bookcase in oak with glass doors in which are packed perhaps half a thousand volumes, largely works of reference and technical information. The English speaking poets are there, and the chief of the foreign bards, either in their own tongues or in translations. There were a few books in costly bindings, but most were in plain leather or cloth. "There are some books," said the author, "that I read for love of them and those who wrote them, but I read chiefly for information. I read subjects rather than books and seldom finish a volume for its own sake."

In reply to questions he continued: "Tennyson voices, as it were, his sunshine and his music are those of our own time; there is more to move us to sympathy and interest from him. I met him when you speak of favorite ones, but there is Keats and there are all the rest. It is not easy to say what we like best in poetry. It must be dependent on circumstances and particular tastes."

THE BUST ON THE CHIMNEY PIECE

Was a heroic bust of Homer, modeled from the antique by the author's sister, Mrs. Cox, an artist of strong merit and not a little cleverness. Mr. Cable himself has no little predisposition for both music and pictorial art.

There was also a bust of Cicero by Mrs. Cox, several landscapes in oil of Louisiana scenery and a negro figure piece—all by George H. Clements, a Louisiana artist studying now in Europe and painting genre pieces particularly with much force of expression—hanging on the walls. An old and gracefully shaped Sevres vase stood in a niche of the chimney, and some glass cases of rare and bright colored moths and butterflies from the Louisiana insect world were placed on the top of the bookcases.

A large old desk, ink stained and scarred and dented by years of service, made of solid dark wood, stood in front of a broad and breezy window. It was covered with papers and writing material and a few books. Among this sort of literary chaos were some proof-sheets of a forthcoming installment of "Dr. Sevier." The author's special seat is an arm chair revolving on a pivot, such as is seen in any mercantile office, and there were a few other plain chairs and a low long seat in the recess of the window. These completed the paraphernalia of this interesting literary workshop.

Here is where Mr. Cable has done his marvelous word painting and created those

BRILLIANT PICTURES OF NEW ORLEANS

Scenery and those wonderful stories of Louisiana life that have so soon placed him in the front rank of American story tellers.

Perhaps Mr. Cable has caricatured some of the worthy classes of Louisiana's population. It may be that his views on mooted race questions do not meet universal approbation among his fellow citizens. Such charges have been made, but he present writer as a mere chronicler of events has nothing to do with such matters. He simply finds this citizen occupying a place of eminence in the American republic of letters, and records the event.

The reporter asked Mr. Cable concerning his recent visit to Alabama. He said he had visited Montgomery and Tuskaloosa and at the latter place had delivered a lecture before the State Historical Society during the commencement week of the university there. The lecture was attended by a large audience, composed of the best people, among whom were the governor and other prominent gentlemen. The theme on which he spoke was the obligation which the present generation owes to its predecessor. All the progress in material prosperity, in intellectual development, and in social and moral advancement made by one generation imposes on its successor an obligation to carry on the good works, to remedy the evils and to redress the wrongs done by predecessors. He applied the subject in each of these three heads and called on his fellow citizens of the south to address themselves to this work of progress and reform. Pursuing the subject in the direction of the social and moral condition of

THE SOUTHERN PEOPLE.

He spoke of the progress that had been made in getting rid of the blight left on the country by slavery. He said that there is much to be done in this direction. There were evils to be abated and wrongs to be righted which no powers of law could not or would not settle, and he believed it was the duty of the southern people to appeal only to conscience and the highest sense of right and justice in dealing with them.

Mr. Cable says the views expressed by him were very advanced and he did not expect they would meet with such general favor as they had found. Gentlemen came to him and thanked him for the boldness and independence with which he had spoken, and said that the people were growing in liberality of views on the subject and were now accepting opinions which they would have rejected a few years ago.

Mr. Cable had found a similar state of affairs in Mississippi. Three years ago he had lectured at the university at Oxford in that state, and had then presented what he considered advanced views, but three years afterward those views had been reached and passed by the people, and when next he lectured there he made still further advances in his expressions on social development, and he still found many ready to accept them. He mentioned these as evidences of the substantial progress his fellow citizens of the south were making in ethical as well as material and esthetic progress.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Washington Territory.

Olympia Courier of July 22.—Last evening a Chinaman brought the intelligence to the police authorities that he had found the dead body of the missing Chinaman in the brush just below the residence of Mr. Young on the west side of the bay. Justice Keady, who, in the absence of Mr. O'Connor, acts as coroner, was notified, and summoning a jury, repaired at once to the spot where the body was said to be. The body was found some distance from the road, and in a position that bore evidence of its having been dragged and secreted there. As above intimated, the remains were pretty well advanced in decomposition and gave off such noxious gases that the duty of the judge and his jury was exceedingly disagreeable. The body was identified by the Chinamen present as that of Fee Gung, who has been missing since July 4. They stated that he had been employed at Lincoln's brickyard on the west side of the bay, and that some time prior to the 3d of this month he had sold some property of his, for which he had received $400 in gold. On the night of the above date he, with the money on his person and in company with two of his countrymen named respectively Ye Sam Gong and Mong Gong Tong, came to Olympia. Returning to the brick yard on the night of the same day, the latter two Chinamen gave it out that their companion Fee Gung had left them on the road and whither he had gone they did not know. Since that time nothing has been seen or heard of Fee Gung until his dead body was found last night. On the examination it was discovered that he had received two frightful knife wounds in the neck, besides several gashes on the arms. The stabs in the neck, the doctor testified, severed both the arteries, either of which would have produced death from hemorrhage. The wounds on the arm indicate that there had been a desperate struggle before the fatal blow was given. The coroner's jury agreed upon the following verdict: We, the jury, find from the evidence that the body is that of a Chinaman named Fee Gung, and that he came to his death from knife wounds in the neck and arm inflicted by two Chinamen known as Ye Sam Gong and Mong Gong Tong, on or about the night of the 3d day of July 1884. The perpetrators of the foul murder have both escaped. One is supposed to be in Portland, the other in Victoria.

Hector McMillan, a teamster in the logging camp of E. D. Smith on Ebey slough, near Snohomish, met with a terrible death last Saturday, by falling under the wheels of a car. He was last seen alive at 11 o'clock A. M., when he started from the woods with a carload of logs drawn by a six mule team. When going to dinner the remainder of the crew were surprised to see the car and team standing on the track only about 60 yards from where they started, and horrified upon finding the teamster lying upon his back across the right rail with his body cut almost in two by one of the wheels of the forward truck. Mr. McMillan was alone at the time of the accident, and how it happened will never be definitely known, but it is thought that in jumping across the draft chain, as he was in the habit of doing, in order to make one of the "off" mules do its share of the work, he stumbled and fell immediately in front of the car. Death must have been a most instantaneous. He was thirty-seven years of age, and a native of St. Johns, New Brunswick, where a number of his relatives now reside and from which place he came to the Sound in 1871.

It is stated that there are two sides to the accounts of the Canyon City tragedy—that McFaden of the News is not the black wretch he has been painted, and that Nunes, the Portuguese shoemaker, was crazed at the prospect of his child's death, and committed the rash act of homicide and suicide under a crazy impulse.

SOME GENTLEMEN.

You have for years BLACKLINED and UNDERVALUED PURE, WHOLESOME and BETTER BAKING POWDERS than your own—the "Royal." By blacklines, alleged "Government Chemists," who do not exist, and under the garb of "absolutely pure" you have forced into unsuspecting families a powder which contains the active drug AMMONIA. Eminent physicians and chemists condemn its use in articles of daily food. You cannot longer evade the issue, AMMONIA. The public will compel you to defend its use.

DO NOT TAKE OUR WORD FOR IT.

Every housekeeper can prove the truth of our statements by placing a can of the "Royal" top down on a hot stove until heated, then remove the cover and smell "AMMONIA." This test will show that the "Royal" contains AMMONIA; that DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER does not contain Ammonia. The strength of our powder can be proven by the consumer's reliable test,

THE TEST OF THE OVEN.

In my opinion "DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER" IS SUPERIOR to the "Royal Baking Powder" IN EVERY RESPECT.

SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 26, 1884.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

FRIDAY, July 25.

Other than the steady jobbing trade there is nothing to report to-day. The early morning was cloudy, with sunshine following. At noon the wind shifted to the southeast, but there is no other indication of a change in the weather.

Overland rail receipts have been small for several days past and mostly confined to dry goods, farm implements or hardware. By steamer freights both ways are light, even for the season. The quantity of salmon going by rail is much smaller than was anticipated, doubtless by reason of unsatisfactory markets at the east.

The grain bag situation is very disappointing to holders, who lately deemed $7 50@8 a safe buying price. At these figures large lots were taken up by San Francisco operators. Now they are hard to place at $7, some being sold for even less. That the requirements of the coast were greatly overestimated there is now little doubt. Evidently calculators did not take into account the quantity of second-hand bags that are used between millers and farmers. In Oregon this quantity must have a bearing on the demand for new. A number of mills are operating in this way to a large extent. Another item is that warehousemen have lots remaining from last year, when the comparatively low prices brought about over-purchase. With us values do not fluctuate as at San Francisco, but the market is weak in sympathy.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS past 24 hours: 226 bbls flour, 90 ctls oats, 197 ctls millstuff, 10 sks potatoes, 1009 lbs wool, 519 lbs hides, 60 cs eggs, 15 bxs fruit, 9 pkgs butter. Also 2 bbls flour, 5300 pounds hides from the eastern section.

SALMON SHIPMENTS—per str Oregon to San Francisco July 21: Astoria Pkg Co 1000, Aberdeen 800, Badollet 1000, Booth 830, Cutting 1000, Warren 32, J W Hume 486. Total 4318 cases.

WHEAT—Advices to-day note no marked changes. At Chicago August options are a fraction higher, yet not firm. The local market is neglected.

OATS—Very little doing. Arrivals in two days have been small, but this does not help values.

POTATOES—Dealers bidding down, some naming as low as 25 cents per bushel. The low price will doubtless affect receipts and possibly help prices.

CHICKENS—Arrivals move off with little drag at yesterday's quotations.

EGGS—Receipts again show some increase, and a weak market is had at 30c. It is said that this figure is shaded on round lots.

SHIPPING NOTES.

The Walla Walla, coal laden from Seattle, is in the river.

The bark Navesink, 58 days from Hong Kong with general cargo, arrived in to-day and will come up river immediately. She is consigned to Allen & Lewis.

The Frank Carvill sailed from Hong Kong for San Francisco June 6th.

St. Mary's Hospital, Astoria, has agreed with the United States Marine hospital service to furnish quarters, subsistence, nursing, medical attendance and medicines for sick sailors at the rate of $1 per day. The contract expires June 30, 1885.

The ship Sterling, now at New York, has her name painted in large-sized letters on her stern. This might be followed to advantage by more of the merchant vessels. Some have their names only on the stern and then in letters difficult to distinguish. Often one has to institute diligent search in order to place the craft. As a distinguishing mark at sea or across docks, prominent lettering is desirable.

The joint committee appointed before the adjournment of congress to inquire into the organization and work of the coast and geological surveys, the signal service and the hydrographic offices of the navy department, has decided to hold its first meeting in Washington on the 11th of November next. In the meantime sub-committees will collect information with regard to the work of the bureaux named and obtain the opinions of scientific experts as to the economy and efficiency of their present organization and management.

The Doctors Mistaken.

Hartford Post.

Dr. C. A. Taft, the leading homeopathic physician in Connecticut, who died Thursday, was supposed for years to have had only one lung, the other having been exhausted in early life by a pulmonary difficulty. Very soon after beginning practice he was sickly and puny, and Dr. Willard Parker of New York examined him, and said one lung was about gone, and he could not live over six months. A leading Boston physician confirmed this opinion. Dr. Taft resolutely determined to live as long as possible, and began a course of generous living to make blood and tissues. Speaking of this period, he said some time ago to a friend: "I had a bottle of brandy at my plate every dinner, and I lived chiefly on rare beefsteak. I got the reputation of being a confirmed drunkard, but I saved my life. I have gained nearly sixty pounds, now weighing 186." Since those days he had not had to resort to just that arrangement, but lived uncommonly well, and had the reputation of providing the most bountiful dinners in Hartford. Upon his death the newspapers remarked upon his loss of one lung, and expressed surprise that he could have lived to the age of 64. Yesterday, as the result of an autopsy, it was found that both his lungs were in a perfectly healthy condition, and that the trouble and cause of his death was in the stomach, which had not assimilated gastric juice, so impeding digestion finally that he literally starved to death. It is considered a noticeable case, showing that a well educated physician, upon his own knowledge, and aided in the diagnoses by the best physicians in the country, was wholly mistaken as to the cause of his ills, and by the course of living designed to cure one serious difficulty, as he supposed, which did not exist, brought on gastric troubles which caused death at last. An Old Warrior Slandered.

Atlanta Constitution.

A Frenchman who registers the number of kisses he exchanged with women, has 30,530 recorded on his books for last year. There is but one man in America who can show a better record, and that, it is needless to say, is General Sherman.

Shrewd Advertising.

An English firm of soap manufacturers spend from $120,000 to $160,000 a year in advertising. Artists, essayists and poets are employed by them. They send a package gratuitously to each of the babies whose birth is announced in the London Times.

From Pole to Pole

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has demonstrated its power of cure for all diseases of the blood.

The Harpooner's Story.

New Bedford, June 1, 1883.

DR. J. C. AYER & CO.—Twenty years ago I was a harpooner in the North Pacific, when five others of the crew and myself were laid up with scurvy. Our bodies were bloated, gums swollen and bleeding, teeth loose, purple blotches all over us, and our breath seemed rotten. Take it by and large we were pretty badly off. All our lime-juice was accidentally destroyed, but the captain had a couple dozen bottles of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA and gave us that. We recovered on it quicker than I have ever seen men brought about by any other treatment for Scurvy, and I've seen a good deal of it. Seeing no mention in your Almanac of your Sarsaparilla being good for scurvy, I thought you ought to know of this, and so send you the facts.

Respectfully yours, RALPH Y. WINGATE.

The Trooper's Experience.

Masern, Basutoland (S. Africa,) March 7, 1883.

DR. J. C. AYER & CO.—Gentlemen: I have much pleasure to testify to the great value of your Sarsaparilla. We have been stationed here for over two years, during which time we had to live in tents. Being under canvas for such a time brought on what is called in this country "veldt-sores." I had those sores for some time. I was advised to take your Sarsaparilla, two bottles of which made my sores disappear rapidly, and I am now quite well.

Yours truly, T. E. BODEN,
Trooper, Cape Mounted Riflemen.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla
